

Update: Mission Moment—Meet John Hill

The Story of John Hill

Porter County Court House, Valparaiso, Indiana

Unable to work, John Hill found himself unemployed, homeless and without a car. Two years ago, John applied for disability benefits. This process is quite complex and requires various visits to state and federal offices throughout Indiana. John's hearing date was finally set but scheduled in Valparaiso.

As a guest of the LUM shelter, John meets regularly with a case manager. John's case manager is also the director of the LUM shelter, Joyce Fasani. After hearing of his dilemma, Joyce called on her colleague Mary Anderson, the director of the Good Samaritan Fund. Approving John for funding was the easy part. Joyce and Mary soon realized that getting John to Valparaiso for his hearing would be very difficult. John would need to take a late bus to Chicago, stay overnight in the bus station, take a very early bus to Valparaiso, get a ride to the court house, get a place to stay overnight in Valparaiso and then all of the same travel back home.

Mary and Joyce stepped up, worked out all of the details and developed a schedule for John. Joyce then relayed this information to John including the schedule of his bus travel, his time table, and the contacts of those giving him rides, meals, and lodging in Valparaiso. Joyce and Mary went above and beyond to make this possible for John.

The philosophy of the Lafayette Urban Ministry is to serve clients like John very well – and this is a great example of how much LUM was needed in this situation. Joyce and Mary's experience, persistence and eagerness to collaborate were what made this story a success.

Joyce and Mary commented that John could have easily given up and said to himself "this is not worth it." But he didn't. Mary and Joyce are very proud of John for his perseverance in this situation and over the past two years. Joyce and Mary are happy to report that John won his disability claim and will receive his benefits in December.
